Unalienable Rights

Originally dated July 2, 1776, the Declaration of Independence states the following in its preamble:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government."

There's been a lot of conjecture about rights in the last four years — who has them, and who can take them away. Our Constitution is clear: The equal rights shared by all humans are "unalienable." They cannot be taken away because they are granted not by any man or institution but rather they are "endowed" upon individuals by our Creator. Furthermore, government possesses no rights. Its sole purpose is to protect the rights of its citizenry from outside forces. If it fails in this duty, well, you can read the rest.

Indeed, July 2, 1776 is our original Independence Day. This fact is corroborated in a letter written by John Adams to his wife on July 3 of that year:

Yesterday the greatest question was decided, which ever was debated in America, and a greater, perhaps, never was or will be decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony 'that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, and as such they have, and of right ought to have, full power to make war, conclude peace, establish commerce, and to do all the other acts and things which other states may rightfully do.' . . . You will see in a few days a declaration setting forth the causes which have impelled us to this mighty revolution and the reasons which will justify it in the sight of God and man."

As we celebrate the birth of our nation, let us also celebrate our Creator who endowed us with these rights. Let us remember our responsibility to follow him — remember, our Constitution was made only for a moral and religious God-fearing people. Thus, if God's people do not fast and pray for the exposure of the corruption in our nation's capital, there will be an apocalypse of the judgment on the very Republic that called upon Him for His divine favor and protection.

See you when the smoke clears.

Charting the End

VOLUME 2 with Michael Rood

The Book of The Revelation has been a target of conjecture and commentary for centuries — because no one seems to understand it. But is it as complicated as we are making it out to be? Are we looking at it through the wrong lens?

Michael Rood, who considers The Book of the Revelation the simplest book in the Bible, shares his perspective, in this never-before-seen teaching (recorded in 2020), how to decipher John's vision with the Torah in mind, which foretold the entirety of Yeshua's life, death, and second coming in stunning detail.

Charting The End is visual explanation of the end of days — with a guide who knows the Christianity you came from and, more importantly, can lead you through the maze of assumptions to the simple truth of "the fifth Gospel."

Love Gift Collection July

When friends and family address us, they may use common titles or nicknames other than our given name based on mutual endearment and respect. Does the Almighty extend that same permission to us when we address Him?

Joe Bakanovic brings a thought-provoking teaching about God's name – which titles are appropriate, which are not, when to use them, and how to know the difference.

What's In A Name will challenge you to put assumptions aside and take a broader look at the character of our Creator and understand why he has allowed us to use so many different titles to address him in the Scriptures.
